“RIDE THE LASSO FROM STURGIS TO DEVILS TOWER”

Each year, hundreds of thousands of motorcycle riders flock to the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally. And each year, the smart ones take part in the popular motorcycle riding tradition by heading northwest, over the Wyoming border, and on to the legendary Devils Tower in northeast Wyoming!

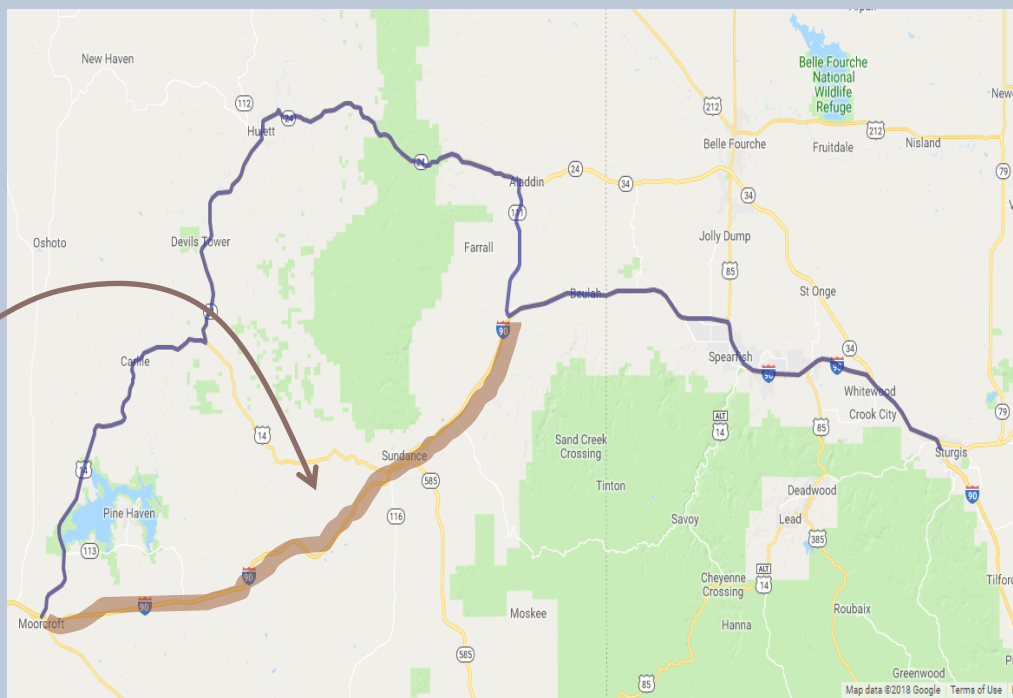

The Ride to Devils Tower from Sturgis

The ride starts you at the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally in Sturgis South Dakota where you head west on I-90 through Spearfish and on over the South Dakota border into Wyoming. Although many motorcycle riders cringe at the thought of traveling on an interstate highway, I-90, in these wide open picturesque sections of South Dakota and Wyoming, is actually quite beautiful and enjoyable to most of the riders. However soon after crossing into Wyoming you will depart the interstate and jump on Route 111 heading north through more wide open expanses and soon you will begin to travel through the green mountain scenery that has teased you off in the distance up until now. From here you continue west meandering through combinations of hills, forests, and more wide open expanses and you'll begin to catch glimpses of Devils Tower which will grow larger and larger until you pull into the visitor center, shut down the bike, and begin your tour of the United States' first national monument!

The Map to Devils Tower from Sturgis

The path of this motorcycle ride resembles a lasso when you add the return leg from Moorcroft, WY along I-90 through Sundance, WY.

Rider Photos & Memories From the 'Lasso'

"The view as we finally caught glimpse of the tower was just awesome."

"Even though Devils Tower is the showpiece of this route, I have to admit the scenery getting there was pretty darn good too!"

"Awesome ride. The pictures don't do it justice!"

Ride the Lasso currently ranks as the 5th most popular route in South Dakota and 4th most popular in Wyoming

"Looked like Sturgis had relocated to the trading post when we pulled up. LOL."

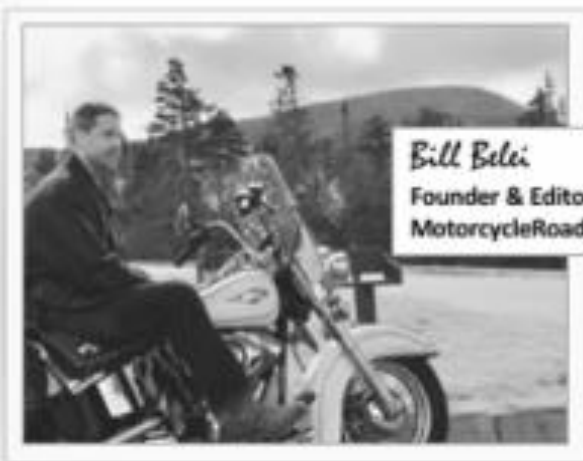

*"Great ride.
Would love to do
again soon!"*
